Why Exhibit at Entomology 2020?

The Entomological Society of America’s Annual Meeting is where insect scientists and enthusiasts come to share their science, cultivate new research and build lasting connections.

Be a part of one of the largest, most exciting annual gatherings of insect scientists in the world. Entomology 2020 is the ideal time to broaden your exposure and connect with over 3,500 scientists, researchers, and key decision makers from around the globe who need products and services for the entomological sciences.

As an exhibitor you can...

- Put your products or services in front of a new, broader audience
- Generate on-site sales
- Connect with current customers
- Reinforce your brand influence within the insect science community
- Motivate future research through your products and services
- Gather high-quality leads to foster new business for your company

Host City:
Orlando, Florida

Florida is a family friendly, fun, easily-accessible, and affordable city. It is also known for its world-class amusement/theme parks and attractions including Walt Disney World, Universal, Orlando, and SeaWorld. Entomology 2020 will take place at the beautiful Rosen Shingle Creek Convention Center, offering dazzling venues, exquisite cuisine, meeting spaces that amaze, and service that delights. Rosen Shingle Creek is conveniently minutes away from the Orlando International Airport and all of the Orlando attractions.
ESA’s exhibit hall is the heart of the Annual Meeting

Traffic building events for the hall include:
- A not-to-be-missed Welcome Reception historically attended by approximately 85% of all attendees; student club tables from leading universities; rotating scientific posters and more!
- Historically attended student club tables from leading universities; rotating scientific posters and more!
Advertise in the Annual Meeting Program Book

The program book is an essential reference at the meeting and most attendees refer to their book dozens of times throughout and after the meeting, creating multiple exposure opportunities for you.
